Trade setup: Trading in a Descending Triangle. Wait for a breakout, which typically occurs to the downside. Previously, price broke below $15 key level, which held in prior months, sign of Downtrend. (set a price alert).

Pattern: Price is trading in a Descending Triangle pattern. Typically, a breakout will occur in the direction of the existing trend. Most traders will take a position once the price action breaks through the bottom line of the triangle with increased volume, which is when the price should decline an amount equivalent to the widest section of the triangle.

Trend: Downtrend across all time horizons (Short- Medium- and Long-Term).

Momentum is Bearish but inflecting. MACD Line is below MACD Signal Line and RSI is below 45 but momentum may have bottomed since MACD Histogram bars are rising, which suggests that momentum could be nearing another upswing.

OBV (On Balance Volume): is declining, indicating that volume on Up days is lower than volume on Down days. Hence, demand (buyers) is below supply (sellers).

Support and Resistance: Nearest Support Zone is $7. The nearest Resistance Zone is $10 (previous support), then $15.
